

Bernard Wilkin

Holds a Master's degree in History from the University of Liège, Belgium. Having worked for the public sector in Belgium for years, he then moved to Wales to undertake an MA in Fine Arts at the University of Aberystwyth. In 2014, he completed a PhD on 'Allied Propaganda Aimed at the Occupied Territories of France and Belgium during the First World War' at the University of Sheffield, and was subsequently appointed Visiting Lecturer at the University of Huddersfield. He also became Lecturer at the University of Exeter in September 2015. His research interest focuses on the occupations of France in 1870-1873 and 1914-1918, more specifically on the relationship between the German military and the civilians, and communication attempts between the occupied territories and the free region of France. He also has a wider interest in the cultural history of warfare during the Napoleonic wars.
