

Guy Bud

Guy Bud is a postgraduate student at the University of Oxford, currently studying for a Master of Philosophy (M.Phil) in Modern European History. His undergraduate thesis addressed the German occupation in Belgium (1940-44) in a specific local context within the Province of Namur, particularly focusing on the occupation's effects on identities, nationalism, and localism. His current research is on the post-war history of Belgium.